Description:

We all want to be liked, but sometimes it can feel like we need to change everything about ourselves in order to be attractive (at least that's what advertisers want you to believe).

I have some good news. You don't have to spend a million bucks to look good, and you don't have to change every aspect of your personality. You don't need a big TV or a fancy car. You don't need big muscles or a booty like J-Lo to be attractive.

Different people are attracted to different things, but a few qualities are almost universally appreciated. This book covers those basic qualities everyone wants in a friend or partner, and gives you permission to relax about everything else.

You don't have to change everything about yourself in order to be attractive. If you focus on the most basic and most important aspects of your appearance, personality, and lifestyle... The results may surprise you!
